To Whom It May Concern:

I am excited for the opportunity to write this recommendation for Mrs. April Anderson who is completing her student teaching under my supervision this spring. She has asked that I write this recommendation as she prepares to enter the teaching profession.

April will be a great credit to the teaching profession. She is an outstanding teacher with many talents, abilities and the personality to be successful. She is well prepared and has had a very successful student teaching experience. During this teaching experience she has grown in confidence and experience.

April has very good classroom management skills, and has done an excellent job of keeping her students on task while building good relationships with them. She has demonstrated a great deal of creativity which has helped student find science interesting as well as educational. She has been a good team player, working very well with the other teachers in her department. She is a very positive influence on her students. She has also been an asset to the Science Department at the Intermediate School where she was assigned.

It is my recommendation that April be highly considered as a full-time teacher and given every opportunity to interview for any position available. She will be a great asset to any school.

Sincerely,
